

Oops I Did it Again

Introduction

The people of the Bible weren't heroes to emulate but broken people who trusted God to save them. The greatest Christians in history were not those that God delivered from all pain and misery but those he delivered through pain and misery. Faith starts with honesty before God. But it doesn't stop there.

Pray

Don't forget that if anything significant happens, it's because God moved. Start by asking God to bless this time.

Practice Truth

1. What is one boundary that you can remember pushing the limits of (or crossing) when you were a child? Do you remember what the consequences were?
2. What is one boundary that you push the limits of today? And what might be the consequences of that boundary?
3. Which boundaries did Samson push the limits of, and even cross? Why were these a violation of the call of God on his life? And what were the consequences for Samson?
4. Why is it important to trust and live into the boundaries set in our lives? Can you share an example of you have experienced God's boundaries for you being good for you and those around you?
5. How have you seen God's grace show up in your life, even despite your flaws? (cf. Judges 14:6 & 19)

Do Life Together

How have you experienced accountability and support in the past? How can accountability help with living into the boundaries God has set in our lives? As the Holy Spirit has brought some boundaries to your mind through this discussion, is there any accountability you'd like from this group?
